01 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Open a shared question, not a mandate.

This fictional forum asks what a shared reading space might need to make its purpose understandable. The aim is to surface questions and differences, not to announce a decision on behalf of a community.

Use three topic circles: finding information, using shared resources and choosing how to contribute. The proposed structure establishes no actual venue, public consultation, organising authority or participant representation.

Forum intention

A useful record distinguishes a suggestion, a question and a matter requiring a real decision elsewhere. None of those becomes a mandate merely because it appears in a summary.

Figure 1 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Purpose | Non-purpose | Output |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Surface questions about a proposed shared reading space. | No vote, public mandate or operational approval. | A traceable account of proposals, questions and differences. |

What would make the conversation useful without pretending that everyone agrees?

FORUM NOTE

N01 / T01 / proposal

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

02 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Explain who can participate and what is optional.

Participants should understand the topic, what may be recorded and whether they may choose not to speak or be quoted. A contribution should not require disclosure of private circumstances.

This template supplies no actual invitations, access arrangements or consent. Real organisers must establish the relevant setting, responsibilities and participation routes rather than assume that an open invitation represents every affected person.

Participation boundary

Offer an appropriate way to ask a question or pass on public sharing. Do not promise confidentiality, access or a response service that has not actually been arranged.

Figure 1 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

Choice

Speaking, being named and sharing a personal example are distinct choices.

Record use

Explain the actual purpose and permitted sharing before collecting notes.

Representation

No actual participant group or representative claim established.

Whose perspective might remain absent even if the conversation feels active?

FORUM NOTE

N02 / T01 / question

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

03 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Collect topics without inventing submissions.

Ask what information a new reader would need, how shared material might stay understandable and what a voluntary contribution could involve. These are authored starter questions, not submitted community requests.

Keep the original wording of any real contribution only under an appropriate recording arrangement. Separate a topic someone raised from a topic the organiser introduced. Avoid treating the number of mentions as a measure of importance without a defined basis.

Topic collection

The example register contains three topic IDs and six authored note examples. It records no actual submissions or preferences.

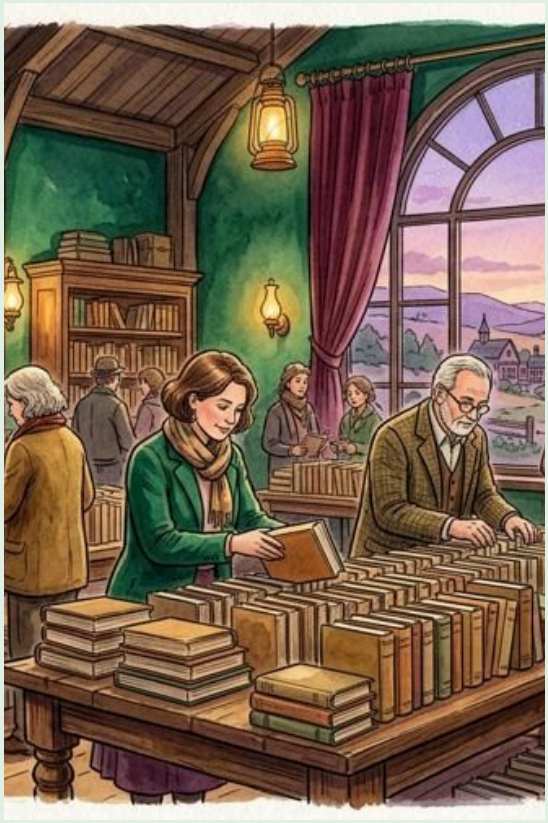

Figure 2 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

T01 / information

How could a new reader understand the space?

T02 / resources

How might shared material remain understandable and current?

T03 / contribution

What could an optional contribution involve?

Can the summary show where a topic came from?

FORUM NOTE

N03 / T02 / proposal

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

04 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Give each circle a clear inquiry.

The information circle examines orientation. The resources circle examines finding and maintaining material. The contribution circle examines voluntary participation and responsibility. Each should leave room for a question outside its initial framing.

The circles are conceptual, not rooms, capacity assignments or a scheduled public event. A real arrangement must address the actual venue, access needs and organising responsibilities. Do not use this diagram as a physical route or safety plan.

Three-circle structure

Each circle can return one proposal, one unresolved question and one difference in interpretation. That format supports comparison without forcing a common answer.

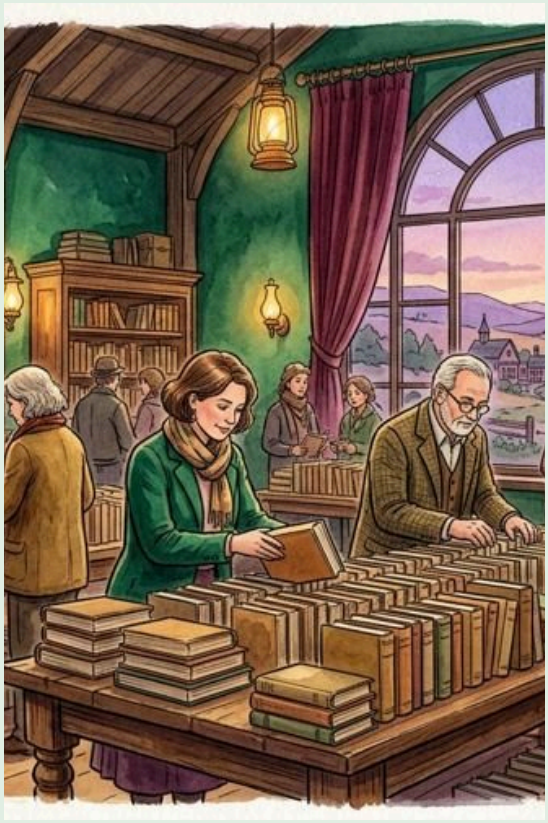

Figure 2 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Information circle | Resources circle | Contribution circle |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Orientation and understandable explanations. | Finding material and keeping context current. | Voluntary involvement and clearly agreed responsibility. |

What belongs in the circle, and what should be referred elsewhere?

FORUM NOTE

N04 / T02 / question

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

05 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Host the discussion without manufacturing agreement.

Say: we are collecting ways of understanding this question. You can add a proposal, challenge an assumption or choose not to share. Ask what the suggestion would require in practice.

Invite clarification without requiring a participant to defend a personal experience. If a conversation needs an actual organisational decision, identify that boundary. The host role in this document is functional, not a named appointment or delegated power.

Host prompts

A useful question is: what does this proposal make easier to understand, and what condition could make it unsuitable? It keeps the focus on the idea and its limits.

Figure 3 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

Invite

What would you want a first-time reader to understand?

Clarify

What condition does this suggestion depend on?

Preserve

Record an unresolved difference rather than declaring consensus.

What prompt would help a quieter or differently framed concern remain visible?

FORUM NOTE

N05 / T03 / proposal

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

06 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Record the note and its status together.

An example proposal is to keep a short orientation note near a shared catalogue. An example question is who would check whether that note remains current. Both are authored discussion prompts.

For a real record, distinguish a direct contribution, an organiser paraphrase and an interpretation. Agree the relevant use of names or quotations. A polished summary is not evidence that a participant endorsed its wording.

Discussion record

The six examples in the source register are not observations, minutes or testimonials. Keep their fictional status visible when using them for practice.

Figure 3 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Proposal example | Question example | Status |
| --- | --- | --- |
| A short orientation note beside the catalogue. | Who checks whether the explanation remains current? | Authored prompt; no participant endorsement or decision. |

Would another reader know whether this is a proposal, question or agreed action?

FORUM NOTE

N06 / T03 / question

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

07 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Synthesize themes without counting people twice.

Bring related questions together while preserving their topic IDs and meanings. A theme can contain both support for an idea and concern about what it would require.

Do not convert repeated notes into a vote or a count of unique people. This example contains no actual participants, so it cannot report attendance, prevalence or majority views. Summarising is an editorial act that needs an inspectable source trail.

Theme synthesis

Use the source note ID beside a theme. If a paraphrase changes emphasis, retain the original note and state the interpretation rather than silently replacing it.

Figure 4 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Theme | Source trail | Counting boundary |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Understandable access to shared information. | Keep the relevant topic and note IDs. | No unique-person count, vote or prevalence measure supplied. |

What important condition might disappear when these notes are grouped?

FORUM NOTE

N01 / T01 / proposal

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

08 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Keep a disagreement readable.

One proposal may favour a visible central catalogue while another question asks who can maintain it. Those statements can sit together without resolving the resource or responsibility question.

A disagreement is not necessarily a conflict between people. Describe the different conditions or interpretations without assigning motives. No real community dispute or consensus finding is established by these authored examples.

Difference / condition / question

Keep the open issue near the proposal it qualifies. Avoid labelling a concern as resolved merely because it did not fit the summary headline.

Figure 4 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Proposal | Condition | Open question |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Make the resource catalogue easy to locate. | Maintaining current context requires an appropriate responsibility. | Who could agree and carry that responsibility in a real setting? |

Which difference should remain explicit in the final account?

FORUM NOTE

N02 / T01 / question

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

09 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Separate a follow-up question from a commitment.

A follow-up record should state what remains to be clarified, which actual role could consider it and whether anyone has agreed to act. A useful conversation can end without a promised outcome.

This template appoints no owner, deadline or response service. Obtain appropriate agreement before sharing contact information or assigning another person an action. Participation in a forum does not itself establish permission for later contact.

Follow-up boundary

Example next question: what existing arrangement could support keeping the catalogue understandable? It is an inquiry, not a funded task or an operational instruction.

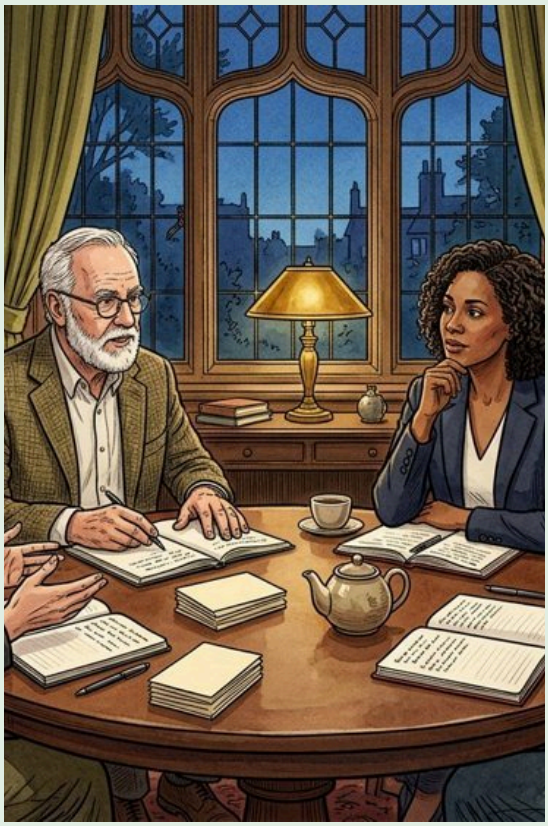

Figure 5 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Question | Responsibility | Contact boundary |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Which existing arrangement could support the shared catalogue? | To be agreed in the actual setting; none assigned here. | No opt-in or permission for later contact supplied. |

What would turn this follow-up note into a legitimate actual agreement?

FORUM NOTE

N03 / T02 / proposal

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.

10 / COMMUNITY FORUM

Review the forum against its purpose.

After an actual forum, examine which questions became clearer, which perspectives remained absent and which differences were preserved. Do not treat the production of a summary as evidence of inclusion or consensus.

This document has no attendance, satisfaction or consultation results. Its review page is a method, not a success report. Keep the record proportionate and distinguish organiser interpretation from appropriately recorded contributions.

Forum reflection

Carry forward one change to the invitation or inquiry structure and one unresolved responsibility question. Use actual relevant evidence before making claims about community value.

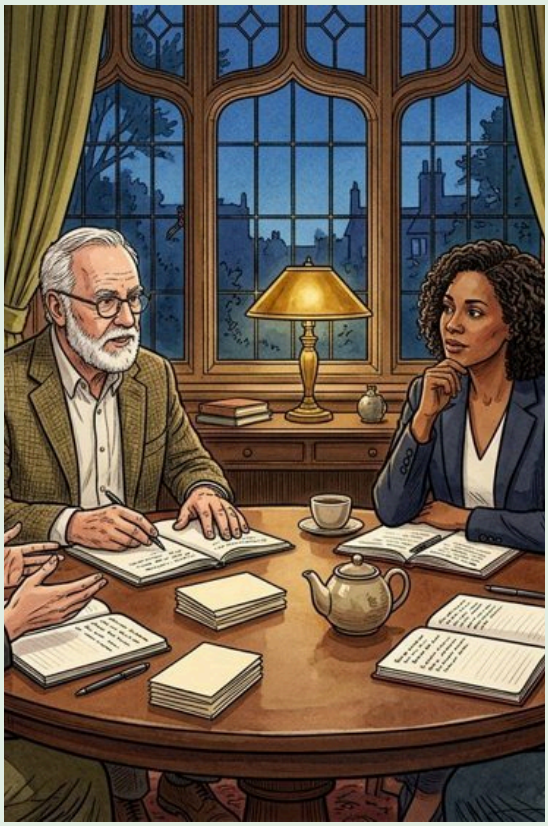

Figure 5 / fictional illustration, not evidence / curated image source in provenance.json

TOPIC / NOTE / DIFFERENCE

| Review | Revise | Evidence boundary |
| --- | --- | --- |
| Were proposals, conditions and questions distinguishable? | Improve one invitation or recording practice. | No real participation, consensus or community outcome reported. |

What would make a future conversation more understandable and appropriately inclusive?

FORUM NOTE

N04 / T02 / question

SOURCE BOUNDARY

3 circles, 6 authored examples; no actual views, votes or consensus.